

Welcome!

Penn is indisputably one of America's finest universities. Its greatness lies not in its longevity, but in its culture and achievements.

At Penn, you'll find a historic Ivy League school with highly selective admissions and a history of innovation in interdisciplinary education and scholarship. You'll also find a picturesque campus amidst a dynamic, vibrant city rich in athletic tradition and heritage.

The University of Pennsylvania traces its origins to 1740, when a group of Philadelphians established a trust for the instruction of children in a charity school. In 1750, Benjamin Franklin combined this trust with his Public Academy of Philadelphia. This institution, chartered in 1755 as the "College, Academy and Charitable School of Philadelphia," became the first university in what is now the United States and continues to carry on the principles and spirit of its founder. Franklin's practical outlook has remained a driving force in the University's development.

Today, Penn is home to a diverse undergraduate student body of over 10,000, hailing from every state and all around the globe. The Campus has 151 buildings on 269 acres in West Philadelphia and is the largest institution of higher learning in the City. We are endowed with resources to provide for sports camps of the highest quality. Our staff hails from the University of Pennsylvania with an illustrious tradition of performance excellence. These ingredients offer the promise of a volleyball experience not found anywhere else.

The PALESTRA

The 2009 Penn Volleyball Camp will be held in the historic Palestra, the 5th-oldest Division I arena in the country. The Palestra has hosted more games, more visiting teams and more NCAA tournaments than any other facility. Located on the Penn campus, the Palestra has hosted more than 75 years of Penn athletics.

PENN VOLLEYBALL CAMP

August 6 - 9

For girls age 14-18 on the Campus of the University of Pennsylvania

2009 Penn Volleyball Camp

Players of all levels and positions are encouraged to attend this camp. Players will be grouped by skill and age level for an individual development experience where one has the environment to maximize her potential and improve to the next level of play. Campers benefit from extensive, top-notch training in the areas of individual skill progressions, team systems and competition drills.

Camp Director

Head Coach Kerry Major Carr enters her 12th season at the University of Pennsylvania. During Carr's tenure, Penn has won 3 straight Ivy League Championships. Penn became the first team in Ivy League volleyball history to make three consecutive NCAA Tournament appearances. Coach Carr was named the 2001 Northeast Region Coach of the Year. Coach Carr, during her 12 years at Penn, has built her summer camp into a nationally recognized destination for a great volleyball experience.

Co-Camp Director

Assistant Coach Ryan Goodwin will enter his second season with the Quakers and his 11th collegiate season. He will assist Kerry Carr in the lead coaching and administration of this year's camp. A veteran of the camp circuit, Coach Goodwin has been involved in camps in New York, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, Tennessee, Michigan, Oregon and Texas.
